HORSE SHOW IS OPENED WITH A FINE PROGRAM

Sixth Annual Event Held At The Dixon Airport

Five-gaited, three-gaited and stunt horses, jumpers and ponies—all as beautiful as the trophies for which they are competing—opened the brilliant 6th annual horse show program at the Lee County Fair last night.

In true showmanship style, the program began with a parade of livestock around the arena, led by the Mt. Morris combined high school and grade school band. All the entries in the heavy horse, beef and dairy cattle classes were shown in the march around the ring.

The second event of the show was opened to the three-gaited saddle horse, 15.2 and under. Two entries were shown and first prize ribbon went to Gay Society entered by Miss Grace Merrill of North Aurora and second to American Song entered by Helendale Farm of Maple Park.

E. H. Prince donated the trophy for the children's driving class which was opened to drivers of either ponies or horses. Management of horse counted 50 per cent and horse or pony and vehicle counted the other 50 per cent. Winners in this class were: First, Phyllis, entered by Helendale Farm; second, Miss Love, entered by Fox View Stables; third, Philo, entered by Helendale Farm; fourth, Chang, Mrs. George Beier's entry. Eagle the Great.

One of the feature attractions of the evening was the exhibition of a "high school horse with a college education." Eagle the Great, owned by G. W. Ault of Kirkland, gave a circus-like performance, showing the almost human qualities a horse may have.

The American Legion girls' drill team, coached by Jack Kennaugh, gave an entre-acte exhibition.

Resuming the horse show the class for five-gaited combination was won by Charming Cavalier, entered by Henton G. Clabaugh of Winnetka, first; Moonlight Madonna entered by Forest View Stables, second; Lady Hightone, entered by Helendale Farm, third; and Tilly's Rose, entered by Thomas P. O'Malley of Aurora, fourth.

In this class the horses are first shown with the carriage and judged on their driving. The carriage is taken away and the horse is shown under saddle in the walk, trot and canter which are the normal gaits of a horse. In two additional gaits, the slow-gait and the rack, the horse's fine training is demonstrated. In the rack no two of the horse's feet must touch the turf at the same time. Both the left and right leads of the canter are also judged. This is perhaps the most difficult performance through which a horse may be put.

Three-Gaited Amateurs
Lord Brilliant, entered by M. C. Fitzpatrick of Aurora, was the first prize winner in the class for three-gaited amateurs. Horses in this class are not show horses but are animals groomed for pleasure riding. Other winners in this class were: Second, Sir Henry, a Helendale entry; third, Copper King, entered by Gerald Hutton of Oswego; fourth, Firefly, entered by Mrs. Ernest Lewis of Compton.

In the class for five-gaited mares Moonlight Madonna was first; Lady Hightone was second; Tilly's Rose was third and Virginia Lynn, a Thomas O'Malley entry, was fourth.

Helendale Farm entries won first and second in the Shetland pony class with Lady to drive. Third was won by Laddie, a Fox View Stables entry; and fourth by Midget, entered by Dale Ward of LaMoille.

Flash and Duchess, Dickey Riding Academy entries, scored perfect cards in the class for jumpers and first prize went to Duchess; second to Flash; third to Painted Devil and fourth to Major Hi-Boy. Both of the last two were entered by C. G. LeKander of Geneva.

Other feature attractions at the show were an exhibition by Flash, a Dickey-owned horse and a between-acts gymnast performance by Ken Davis.

The horse show will be continued tonight when more classes and new events will be presented.

R. A. Lumpkin of Mattoon, Miss Mary Yocum of Galva and Dr. P. Fletcher of Geneva were the judges in last night's show.

The Junior Legion Auxiliary drill team presented an exhibition during the afternoon, which was one of the features of the program. In the pony contests, the results were as follows:

Potato Race—Leroy Fane, first; Robert Kane, second; Leo Dieterle, third.

Lee county children's class—

With a Bang

A school teachers' tour through the Bureau county court house museum, at Princeton really came off with a bang yesterday.

Allen pulled the trigger to show how it was supposed to work. It did, with a terrific explosion. Some how or other it had gotten filled with powder.

No one was injured but Allen suffered from shock and embarrassment. At once the museum officials began checking over every gun in the place.

INJURIES FATAL TO OGLE COUNTY MAN, CAR VICTIM

Ole Winterton, farmer residing northwest of Rochelle, who was seriously injured when struck by a car driven by Glen Bales of Steward late Thursday afternoon, passed away shortly before midnight Thursday at the Lincoln hospital at Rochelle. Dr. J. C. Akin of Forreston, Ogle county coroner, has continued the inquest until 7 o'clock Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Winterton were en route to Dixon Thursday evening about five o'clock when their car and a truck sideswiped about three miles west of Rochelle. Winterton stepped from his car to obtain the license number of the truck, when the car driven by Bales struck him. Frank Barickman of Rochelle, witness to the accident, followed Bales and informed him that he had struck a man, obtained his license number and then returned to the scene.

Bales failed to return. Bales gave the strange number, 1-10-10, to the Rochelle city and state police who arrested the Steward man later Thursday night. He is at liberty under bond of $1,000 on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Mr. Winterton was born in Norway and lived in this country for about 30 years. He was married to Alice Sisby 16 years ago and since that time had lived on farms in the vicinity of Rochelle. He was a member of the Ashton Masonic lodge and of Rochelle post, American Legion.

EX-CONVICT IS CRUCIFIED: HE KNEW TOO MUCH

Reno, Nev., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Ed Collins, 27-year-old ex-convict, was stripped, nailed to a cross and left to die with his clothes burning at his feet because, he said, "I know too much."

Rescued, he told officers before going to sleep today under the influence of hypodermics, that he was nailed to the cross last night by two former "pals" involved in a San Diego, Calif., pay roll hold-up for which he was sent to San Quentin prison.

When he refused to join them in a robbery and insisted upon "going straight," Collins said they told him:

"All right, if you want to be a little Jesus Christ, we'll make one out of you."

Collins' screams and the fire which seared his feet attracted Earl Dabney, a Negro, to the spot near the county hospital. He summoned police.

They found Collins face upward, spread-eagled on the crude cross. A ten-penny nail was driven through each hand and each foot.

Doctors said he would recover unless the nail holes in his feet and hands became infected.

10th. Anniversary of Signing of Kellogg Pact: Millions are Armed

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A little gray-haired man in a cutaway coat picked up a gold pen and signed "Frank B. Kellogg" at the foot of a legal paper while 1,000 persons, nearly suffocating in the Salle de J'Horloge of the French foreign office, applauded and cheered.

And thus, 10 years ago today, there came into the world the famed Kellogg pact to outlaw war.

It was a colorful scene in the same gilded room of the Quai d'Orsay where Woodrow Wilson brought the League of Nations into being.

PURGE ADOPTED TO HIDE ISSUE SAYS HAMILTON

G. O. P. Chairman Urges President to Reply to One Question

Washington, Ind., Aug. 27.—(AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, said today President Roosevelt adopted "the Russian technique of the purge to divert our attention from the failures of the New Deal."

Hamilton spoke at the midwestern Republican "cornfield" conference near here.

He said the president's effort to defeat congressmen he considered unsympathetic to his program was patterned after the "purge" originated by Russia's dictator, Joseph Stalin, and used later by Germany's Fuehrer Adolf Hitler to turn attention from their failures.

"But the American people are not being misled by the theatricals of the New Deal purge," Hamilton said. "They want the real issues of this campaign discussed in the open and they want Mr. Roosevelt to justify, if he can, the plight in which this country finds itself after more than five years of his rule."

He said almost 13 million were unemployed in the United States though more than $21,000,000,000 had been spent on relief and public works; farm income was $1,100,000,000 under last year and farm prices back to 1933 levels; business failures were increasing and industrial production was less than 80 per cent of the 1923-25 average.

Issues of Change
"Let Mr. Roosevelt tell us how," he challenged, "the few of the conditions which I have just recited, the standard of living in this country can be raised how the man who toils in factory and the farmer who toils in field can enjoy a more abundant life when the strangling hand of the federal government is choking off the production essential to sustain for them a more abundant life."

"The Republican campaign is the beginning of a mighty fight to save the United States as we have known it for 150 years. One battle of that fight is being fought this year."

"This country," he concluded, "needs and needs a return to sanity and statesmanship."

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, congressional campaign committee chairman, said the 1938 campaign was a "crossroads in our national life." He urged election of 70 more Republicans to congress.

To Determine Fate
"What we do this year," he said, "will in a great measure determine what is to be our fate—and the fate of the generations to come after us."

"The Republican party realizes fully that adequate federal relief is essential so long as unemployment prevails," he said. "No group of Americans would think of letting the unemployed suffer or starve. But let us establish efficiency and economy in place of the

Happy Clerk

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Raymond Dolphus is a happy shoe clerk now.

He knows who his manager is. He isn't worried about pay. And for a time the all-important question of store ownership is shoved aside.

The tangle started August 6 when Dolphus' boss disappeared. Since then, the 27-year-old clerk has been running the $450-a-week business himself. Unable to find anyone who claimed ownership, Dolphus petitioned Circuit Judge Julius R. Nolte for a receivership.

The court settled the question temporarily yesterday by making Dolphus "manager" as receiver. He'll also continue to operate the store at a salary of $37.50 a week pending final determination of ownership.

He drove into the side of the train, striking the 44th car from the engine.

The car was practically demolished and both occupants were cut and bruised, but the machine was thrown away from the track by the impact. The train consisted of 86 loaded cars, and was in charge of Conductor Carl Keppler and Engineer Ed Hedesteen.

OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR ADDITIONAL CONGRESS SEATS

Keynoter Says Democrat- ic Party Gambles With Fate of Nation

Washington, Ind., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Rep. James W. Wadsworth (R-NY) declared the Democratic administration forces had plunged the nation into economic depression and are "gambling with the fate of the nation" in the keynote speech today at the Republican "cornfield conference" on the Capeheart farm near here.

The meeting, held in a 120-acre tent city near this southern Indiana town of 10,000 population, opened the Republican campaign in 11 midwestern states and the fall campaign for additional congressional seats in the November election.

Thousands of party workers were present, including Republican national officials, leaders from the midwest and Indiana adherents from precinct committeemen up. Party leaders urged election of new Republican congressmen this fall to set the stage for a strong presidential campaign in 1940.

Rep. Wadsworth, 61-year-old upstate New York gentleman farmer, said President Roosevelt "more than any other person or group of persons" was responsible for what he termed the "second or Roosevelt depression."

"Picture Changed."

He said the country was on the road to recovery when, in February, 1937, the president sent congress a message "urging the passage of legislation which would enable him to pack the Supreme Court."

"Instantly the whole picture changed," he said. "The shock was too great to be endured by a people beginning to recover their breath. From that very moment prices began to fall."

He said the president was attempting to "subdue the congress and courts to the executive will." He called on his party to stop him.

"The administration is gambling," he went on. "The fate of the nation is the stake. The gambler lost on his first throw of the dice and the nation will lose on the second throw—if we do not return to sanity and that mighty sun."

Cost About $25,000.

Homer E. Capeheart of Buffalo, N. Y., Hoosier-born vice-president of the Warlitzer Company, was the host. The rally was held on his 400-acre farm. Indiana leaders estimated the New York manufacturer would spend $25,000 on the affair in his avowed effort to "kill the New Deal."

Thirty-eight tents taking in more than 100,000 square feet of blue-and-white canvas were spread on the grounds. Capeheart gave a noon dinner of fried chicken and baked beans. Eight thousand five hundred party workers—from the national chair-

An inhalator squad worked 30 minutes to revive him.

Bids Received on Bureau Co. Paving

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Apparent low bidders were announced today by the state highway department in one of the year's biggest highway lettings, aggregating $2,546,140. They included:

Bureau county—5.83 miles paving from U. S. route 6 east of Princeton east through Seatonville to route 89, Trompeter Construction Co., Peru, $266,091.

After making deductions, he figured the taxable amount of the gift to be $139,378, on which he paid a tax of $12,220. The internal revenue bureau, however, disallowed certain deductions, placed a higher value on the securities, and determined the taxable gift had a value of $459,943.

The total tax should have been $60,290 instead of the amount Lowden paid, the bureau ruled, and claimed the balance in a deficiency assessment.

Newlyweds Facing Charge of Theft

Wheaton, Ill., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Du Page county authorities today held Al D. Young and his bride of two months, the former Mrs. Mae Peterson, under $10,000 bonds on charges of taking $5,000 in Lombard school funds.

Allan Myers, chief state's attorney's investigator, said Mrs. Young, secretary of the school board until recently, admitted taking the money to help finance her husband in a coal deal.

The Youngs surrendered to authorities last night. Warren were issued for their arrest several days ago.

Hair-Do Strike

Chicago, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Are American women on a "hair-do strike" against the high-up coiffures that hairdressers and stylists are trying to popularize for general wear?

Marc Gartman, president of the Illinois Hairdressers Association said today he believed they were.

"For one thing it is aging—and what woman will risk that?" he asked.

"Hairdressers in New York and Paris may say midwest women are slow in taking up a new style. But I refer them to photographs of prominent women and screen stars in actual life—not posed style pictures—in newspapers and in national magazines."

"They won't find many with their hair 'up,'" he said.

GIRL'S TALK IN SLEEP UNCOVERS MURDER MOTIVE

Washington, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—District Attorney James C. Bane told today how a 12-year-old girl's mumbling in her sleep disclosed incestuous relations with her father, whom she later killed.

He said the girl, Irene Griez, only daughter of Steve Griez, 53, accused her father of mistreating her and abusing her mother. An information filed by county detectives charged the girl with murder.

Bane said the child accused her father of having illicit relations with her when she was nine years old and added that she had confessed planning the shooting for a month but was "just waiting for a chance."

Griez, a native of Hungary and a WPA worker, lived with his family in an old farmhouse in a nearby mining village in southwestern Pennsylvania. It was there that he was shot in the back of the head Thursday as he ate breakfast.

Bane said the child declared she had kept secret the alleged three-year-old mistreatment by her father until it became known to the mother when Irene talked of it in her sleep.

Farm Demonstration Near City Wednes.

The newest types of tractors, plows, tillage tools and harvesting equipment will be in action on the Dan Utz farm east of Dixon on route 330 next Wednesday as the Telegraph sponsors a demonstration day for farmers of this area.

"Alfalfa Hutch" Hutchison who has driven more than a million miles working with farmers to find out how to overcome hundreds of farm problems.

The demonstration on the Utz farm will include a study of red clover, soy beans, hybrid corn and soil fertility problems. There will be leaders in all these farm classifications there to aid "Hutch."

LEAKING WALLS ANNOY OWNERS

Haste in Construction of Modern Buildings Is Often the Cause

All types of masonry walls which leak are sources of vexation to their owners. Leaky walls are not confined to any one type of masonry construction. Leaks have occurred and are occurring in walls built of the best materials and apparently with special care. The fact is often overlooked, however, that the percentage of those which leak is small compared with the large number of masonry walls that are water tight. A logical explanation for the leaks in masonry walls is the haste with which our modern buildings are erected. Workmanship is frequently sacrificed for the sake of speed. Perfection in design and materials cannot make up for this sacrifice. The prevention of leaky walls must begin with the design of the building, follow through the selection of materials and the supervision of the workmanship, and continue with the maintenance of the structure after its completion. Flashing should be placed under all vertical joints in sills, coping and caps or other horizontal surfaces which may permit the accumulation of water on or the passage of water through them. Projecting soldier courses and water tables, walls corbelled back and recessed panels with projecting horizontal courses at the bottom are frequently used without consideration for the more severe exposure resulting therefrom. As a result, water seeps through the vertical joints into the wall. Snow and ice melting on these surfaces greatly increases the possibility of water entering the wall. Flashing over horizontal surfaces may be necessary. There is no alternative for adequate flashing. Parapet walls should be flashed through just above the roof level and also under the coping. Only permanent, rust-resisting metal or bituminous asphaltic of pitch preparations should be used for flashing. Projections and drips on copings, caps, cornices and sills should always be provided. Overflowing gutters and leaky down-spouts are a common source of trouble. Gutters and drains should be ample to carry away the heaviest rains. Metal from gutters should extend up under the roofing far enough to eliminate any possibility of water getting back of it.

RE-VARNISHING FLOORS.

A floor should be washed thoroughly with soap and water, rinsed and dried well before re-varnishing.

WELL - BALANCED PLAN

Here is a simple, well balanced plan particularly suited to a narrow lot. Its modern design is pleasantly modified by a touch of the classical—a type of beauty that will wear well with time. This lasting charm is matched completely by the slow depreciation of the concrete construction which will preserve the value and beauty of this house for decades. Walter J. Thies was the designer.

A VERY FINE SPECIMEN

An organization had sent an expedition to capture specimens of various reptiles. Among other things the leader was interested in capturing a particular kind of lizard. After long, tiring days in rugged country he succeeded in capturing one. It was fifteen inches long and the head and tail were the same length. He was trying to place its measurements in relation to other types of lizards. He said to himself, "If the head were twice as long as it really is then the head and tail would be as long as the body is now." How long would each part of the lizard then be?

Answer to Yesterday's Twizzler—Of course the lizard will be the same distance from Chicago when they pass.

CHURCH NEWS.

Reynolds Evangelical Church. Rev. George A. Walter, pastor. Sunday school—9 A. M. Morning worship—10 A. M. Now that the camp meeting Sunday is history and the reunions are practically over, let us rally for the services in our church next Sunday morning. Just how some turn aside God's command without having compensations of conscience is incomprehensible. Can it be that they have lost interest in the church and the salvation of their souls? Ponder well Heb. 10:25. "Not forsaking of ourselves together as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another." What will one say to God when we have to meet Him at the end of life's journey?

The committee on arrangements, headed by Mrs. George Henert, met last week and set Tuesday evening, September 13 the date for the annual chicken supper. This is one of the big events of the community and the Reynolds church. The food is the best and a supper worth while will be served. Plan to come.

St. John's Lutheran Church. Rev. F. W. Henke, pastor. Sunday school and bible class—9:30 A. M. Lesson: "Eli; Responsibility for Others." Another important lesson. Divine worship—10:30 A. M.

Presbyterian Church. Rev. F. Louis Grafton, pastor. Sunday school—9 A. M. No preaching service.

Evangelical Church. Rev. Parke O. Bailey, pastor. Sunday school—9:30 A. M. Church service—10:20 A. M. Let all the members and friends of our church return for worship next Sunday.

The Mission Band will meet next Sunday at 10:20. No Sunday evening service next Sunday. You will find a welcome with us.

Methodist Church. Rev. Ralph M. Dreger, pastor. Sunday school—9 A. M. Morning worship—10 A. M. Epworth league—6 P. M.

Attendance at Sunday school this summer has been very good. Let us continue our loyal support of the hour when we learn the truth of the Bible and how to apply it in a practical way.

The sermon topic for the morning worship is, "A Normal Christian Life."

The Epworth League will hold its annual meeting with an unusual feature planned. The four young men who were guests of the league last Sunday evening at the outdoor meeting will present some Gospel songs in Spanish.

Exclusive Club is Formed by Mattern

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Jimmy Mattern's new club is exclusive, and he thinks it will remain so.

Mattern, who says he is one of only nine persons who have flown the Atlantic ocean alone, announced the founding of the "Exclusive Order of Transatlantic Solo Flyers."

He named as charter members Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Amelia Earhart, Putnam, Wiley Post, James Mollison, Lieut. Felix Wauk, Mrs. Berle Markham, Jean Batten, Douglas Corrigan and himself.

Mattern said M. L. Benedum, Pittsburgh oil executive, is financing the organization and that insignia, symbols and plaques are being prepared and will be distributed to members or their survivors.

Mattern thinks the order will remain exclusive because, he said, most transatlantic crossings of the future will be by navigation crews such as accompanied Howard Hughes on his recent world flight.

CHEAP FLASHING OFTEN DEAR

Cheap Materials May Cost Much More in the Long Run

Flashing is used in so many places in a house and is so vital to its weather-tight properties that it must not be passed over lightly and left to the whim of the builder. Cheap flashings, like most other cheap things, are most dear in the long run. It is difficult and expensive to replace and usually there is damage to interiors before its defects are discovered.

Therefore, a little extra cost for this item when the house is being built is well worth it, and will be a saving in the end. Flashing should be installed over the heads of all door and window sills; should extend through the wall under all masonry sills and turn up back of them; all junctions where roofs butt up against walls, carrying the metal well up back of the wall covering if it is of wood or well into the wall if it is of masonry.

All chimneys should be flashed and counter-flashed where they pass through roofs. All valleys, even closed valleys, should have flashing at the angle where surfaces meet. Flashing should be carried under the base of all veneered walls and turned part way up the back of the veneering to protect the wood members against possible rot from moisture collecting at the bottom of the wall.

Flashing should be of non-corrosive metal or should be carefully painted with good metallic paint on both sides before being placed and again on the outside, after placing. It should be painted from time to time to forestall corrosion.

VENTILATION.

Ventilation throughout the entire house is important. Bedrooms need it for comfort, particularly in summer, and health requires it for the entire year.

Too, unless the living room is placed far remote from the kitchen, there are apt to be unwelcome odors emanating from the kitchen at times—mayhap when guests are imminent—and proper ventilation will help to eliminate embarrassment.

BATHTUBS.

If you are building or modernizing your bathroom, don't place the bath tub under a window unless it is impossible to avoid doing so. There may be an embarrassing moment when the shade accidentally snaps up while one is in the tub, but more especially chills from draft may bring on a cold.

Also the tub is harder to clean if there is dirt and dust sitting in through the window all the time.

By extending the water supply 18 inches to two feet beyond the faucet to a dead end, an air chamber is formed which makes an air cushion and prevents water hammering and noises.

GLASS BRICK

The use of glass brick is becoming more noticeable all over the United States. In the above illustration is shown a house in which corner windows have been placed. Glass brick has been used to give a great amount of diffused light and metal casement windows have been built into the glass masonry to allow for ventilation and a clear view from the inside of the room. P. H. Butler was the Architect.

ROOF BRACING IS IMPORTANT

Trouble May Result From Improperly Braced Structures

It is most important to tie the roof together properly when constructing a house or there will be difficulty encountered in a short time.

A pitched roof exerts pressure downward and upward. Unless properly tied together, the roof will spread, causing the outer walls to bulge and the interior finish will be inevitably damaged.

It is best to tie the sides together at or near the lower ends of the rafters. If this does not seem possible, then at the "knees" or collar beams. The closer these beams can be placed to the bottom of the rafters, the better the tie will be and the less likelihood there will be of the roof spreading.

WATER SUPPLIES.

The size of the water supply pipe to your house is governed by the number and size of the faucets, the length of the pipe and the water pressure. The supply may vary anywhere from 1/4 inch to 1 1/2 inches, and there should be a main shut-off valve inside the cellar wall to control the entire water supply.

There also should be a shut-off valve at the base of each vertical riser as well as each fixture.

There are 200 distinct bones in the human body.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTSMARSH

THE CHARACTERS
Hugo Stern, handsome author, living on the French Riviera.
Archie Lumsden, myself, Hugo's friend.
Ottile Wills, American heiress, whose sister was murdered.

Yesterday: We bring Ottile to the villa and find Dunning there. She runs into his arms, sobbing.

Chapter 18

The Big Swindle

He held her as he would a child, patting her shoulder with a clumsy tenderness. "There, there!" he soothed her. "That's the girl! Cry it out, honey! Sure I've heard about it all, but only yesterday." He stared across her bowed head at Hugo, with somber indignation. "Mr. Stern," he said, "was this necessary? Couldn't you have left the telling to someone nearer her?" It's cruel to get news like that from a stranger.

Hugo shrugged, his face a dusky red; but before he could answer Ada provided a diversion. She had been standing staring from one to another of us, her eyes round and startled; but now she caught her brother's arm.

"Hugo," she said, in an all too audible whisper, "who is this girl? She's like—"

Hugo laid one brown, muscular hand across her mouth. "Ada, my dear," he said, "this young lady is Miss Ottile Wills. She has come here to have tea with us, but she has just received some rather disturbing news, and I think she would like to be alone for a few minutes. If you'll have tea ready for us on the terrace in half an hour, I think everything will be straightened out by then."

Ada went reluctantly. "See here now, Ottile," Dunning was saying. "Look things in the face, live a good girl, and show your grit. You're not helping Melanie any by crying yourself sick."

The chestnut head shook violently; a muffled sob was the only answer. Hugo poured out a stiff tot of brandy, laid his hand on one limp, dark-blue shoulder, and shook it. "Here, stop that!" he said harshly. "Drink this up at once!"

She lifted her head, drowned dark eyes stared at him resentfully. "I can't," she said, in a voice between a sob and a choke. "Go away—leave me alone, can't you?"

"If you haven't drunk it in one minute," said Hugo, "I'll force it down your throat."

A sudden flash of anger sparked through the tears, but she drained it at a gulp.

Hugo sighed and dropped into the nearest chair, like a man suddenly tired. "If you feel able," he suggested, "we might begin our discussion."

The girl disengaged herself and crossed to an old, gilt-framed mirror, exclaiming at sight of her tear-stained face. Whether as a result of the brandy or her sudden flare of anger she was completely restored to self-control, and she even achieved a wry sideways smile at me as she passed.

Applying a powder puff with vigor, she whispered to me, "May Heaven help the woman he marries!"

She perched herself on the arm of Dunning's chair and laid a hand on his knee, which he covered instantly with one big paw. "Just how much have you told them, Ottile?" he queried gently.

"Nothing that matters," she said. "Only how Sis ran away from home and Pat came over to find her. Oh, Cuthbert, have you heard about Pat too?"

"Sure, sure," he soothed her. "But how much do you wish we should tell them?"

I suddenly realized with dismay that the weapon we had proposed to use for bargaining was at that moment lying, presumably, in the big man's pocket; and that, as he had unquestionably read it, its market value was now precisely nil. From the look on Hugo's face I fancied the same thought had occurred to him.

Cards on the Table
"Before we go any farther," Hugo broke in sharply, "I should like to know Mr. Dunning's exact status. I understood he was a journalist."

The girl gave a little breathless chuckle. "Oh, Cuthbert," she said. "You've never been pulling that gag again? Gentlemen, I assure you that Mr. Dunning is no journalist. He's a detective—in fact, he was Uncle Virgoe's bodyguard 'way back before I was born. Then when he got tired of working for hire, he quit and founded the Dunning Detective Agency in New York."

"With branches in St. Louis, Chicago and San Francisco," put in her subject dryly. "Don't you go leaving out my background, Ottile."

"And it's like this, Cuthbert," the girl went on. "This gentleman, Mr. Lumsden, has a letter from Sis, written just before—just before her death, that he's promised to show me if I tell him—things."

Mr. Dunning looked from Hugo to me with a grim little smile. "I'm sorry, gentlemen," he said, "but all's fair in love and detection. Ottile, that letter was loaned to me by Mr. Lumsden this morning. I came here for the purpose of giving it back to him, but I must tell him, and you too, that its contents are ineradicably engraved on my memory. You don't have to give away a thing unless you want to."

In her turn she looked from one to the other of us, with dark eyes that were wide and questioning and considering. Then very quietly she folded her hands in her lap and sat upright.

"You know, Cuthbert," she said, "I think we'd be wise to trust them. I believe they could help us a lot."

"Well," he drawled, "it's a strange thing, but I have the same impression; only this time gentlemen it must be agreed that all the cards are on the table. Is it a bargain?"

"It's a bargain," said Hugo dryly.

Mr. Dunning crossed to the empty hearth, stood up with his back to it, and looked down on us with a large benevolence.

"Well," he said, "I guess it's up to me to start the ball rolling, but to do that I've got to go 'way back to a certain night in Prague three and a half years ago, when Dr. Raditch, Vice-President of the Czechoslovak Republic, was shot down and killed as he left the opera house. The shooting caused a flutter in the chancelleries of Europe, and an almighty slump in international securities."

He beamed at us with the complacency of a conjurer who has produced a particularly fine rabbit. "An interesting situation?" he commented. "The most interesting bit of it was the amount of insurance against just such a fatality that was collected by a number of innocuous people in various parts of the world. Gentlemen, that was the beginning of what, from now on, we will call the Big Swindle. And here's the continuation of it, right up to date."

Then he proceeded to spin the queerest yarn that I had ever heard.

Fortelling the Future
The assassination of Raditch, he said, was the first of a series of strange fatalities, involving men of every conceivable nationality and calling, but in each case, men of such outstanding importance in commerce, finance, or politics, that their sudden demise caused a considerable slump or panic in their particular sphere of activity; and in each case, it was subsequently discovered, the possibility of their deaths had been heavily covered with a number of insurance policies, taken out by a variety of seemingly unconnected people in all quarters of the globe.

There had been longish intervals between the first three or four deaths, but latterly they had followed each other thick and fast. But nobody ever dreamed of tracing any connection between the various deaths.

The men involved were of such widely differing races and professions, their deaths were so easily and naturally explained—in the case of accidents, the accidents were such as might have happened to anybody; where murder or assassination were involved the killer either escaped or, when caught, was found to have legitimate political or personal grievance against his victim—that no one, Dunning said, smelled a rat.

The people taking out the policies were so completely unconnected and so widely scattered that the most fantastic flight of fancy could not have imagined a connection between any two of them; but—and here was the one weak link in the chain—although the insurance companies involved were seemingly as unconnected as the policy-holders, they were actually bound together by the vast, impalpable spider's web that holds together world finance, for over a certain sum the bulk of their liabilities was carried either by Lloyd's, the Bureau Veritas of France, or the American Bureau.

One day, by a fortuitous coincidence, a gentleman, Edward Pockett by name and a Lloyd's underwriter by profession took his summer holiday in the south of France and there made casual acquaintance with an elderly Frenchman.

They had been discussing the news of the day, the main items of which happened to be the sudden deaths of two prominent men. One of these, a middle-European railway magnate, had come to his end by a fall from an aeroplane. The other, the President of a South American republic, had met with an even more natural and understandable death, for he had been shot down in the course of a revolution.

But, said the elderly Frenchman, the point which interested him was this: in the current number of a certain small almanac the Grimoire astrologique, published somewhere on the Cote d'Azur and purporting in its crude, unlettered way, to foretell the future, both these fatalities had been predicted, not only with uncanny accuracy of detail, but actually in the very months in which they had subsequently occurred.

AUSTRALIAN ACES HAVE HIGH HOPES IN TENNIS MATCH

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Inspired by 19-year-old memories, Adrian Quist and John Bromwich of Australia today had high hopes of gaining their fourth straight victory over Don Budge and Gene Mako, this time in the final round of the national doubles tennis tournament at Longwood.

This match will be a dress rehearsal of the Davis Cup doubles at Philadelphia next week and the Australians would regard a Brookline victory as a good omen for their challenge round chances. The last time the national doubles titles was won by Australia, by Gerald Patterson and John B. Hawkes, was in 1919, the last year it won the Davis Cup.

The Australians gained the title round yesterday by defeating their countrymen, Harry Hopman and Leonard Schwartz, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, in a dull match. Budge and Mako, the 1936 titlists, qualified by outplaying Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, the two-time winners, 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 10-8.

DREAM HOME

No Longer Hard to Have

Who has not mused over his dream home and hoped that some day he could construct it and live in it?

Without doubt it would surpass in loveliness, in comfort and convenience anything you have ever really experienced. It would be insulated, air conditioned; it would have the best of conveniences and appliances that operate automatically. You would eliminate practically all the work and what was left would be done easily and quickly.

Probably you have despaired—particularly through the past few years—of ever owning this dream house, but today you may realize that dream through the present very desirable financing arrangements available.

No one who really wishes to own a home need delay its construction. Why not look into this matter now?

COLOR HAS CHARM.

The color of our surroundings assume the color of our daily lives. Colors seep into our consciousness, influencing our spirits, our moods, our well being.

A gay room adds a note of buoyancy, an exhilaration that lasts throughout the day. Likewise, lack of color can be depressing, giving a drab, morose outlook to sensitive persons. Loud inharmonious color schemes induce a jarring note that brings restlessness and irritation to those who are forced to live with them.

"AU", the symbol for gold, is derived from the Latin word "Aurum", meaning gold.

O'CONNOR TALKS BACK

Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the house rules committee, has accepted the gage of battle thrown down by President Roosevelt, who has added O'Connor to his purge list because the New Yorker has in the past refused to function as a rubber stamp at Washington. Congressman O'Connor indicates that he is glad to fight it out on the issue of whether President Roosevelt shall dictate to the people whom they shall send as representatives to the congress.

"If the people of the United States desire to extend an invitation to a dictatorship, we should know about it as soon as possible," said Mr. O'Connor. "I would be derelict, however, in my duty as a representative elected by the people and as an American citizen if I did not express myself as to what I believe to be the issue now definitely raised in this country."

"Some of us," said O'Connor, referring to the president's wrath against those who vote their convictions, "still maintaining the same views, feel that the indictment may yet constitute an honor roll. The independence of thought and action by our representatives never before has been challenged. One hundred per cent, or 100 per cent that, is a very recent innovation in our national ideology. The dictator demands the 100 per cent, and of course will last only as long as he has it."

"Current history records that the first step of a dictator is to abolish or make impotent the legislative branch of the government. That step is indispensable to the fulfillment of his program and the attainment of his 100 per cent."

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

Further denying that he attempted to use his position as the son of President Roosevelt to further his insurance business, James Roosevelt has published a final article in Collier's magazine, concluding with the explanation that he had expected some one to ask him to use his influence, but no one ever did. Which surprised him. He'd have turned them down, anyway. Consequently it follows that he never offered to intercede for anybody.

Young Mr. Roosevelt admitted that he sent a telegram to Warm Springs asking Miss Margaret LeHand, the president's secretary, to be nice to George Washington Hill, head of the American Tobacco company, and Paul Hahn, the company's vice president. But that was months after he wrote them a 2½ million dollar policy. Quoting the telegram:

"George W. Hill, president American Tobacco company, and Vice President Paul Hahn as you know arrive at Warm Springs Thursday morning. I am trying not to ask many favors but will greatly appreciate it if you would take especially good care of both of them because it is important in a business way to me. He has an interesting plan, part of which directly concerns his own company, and therefore somewhat confidential. Thanks ever so much. Jim Roosevelt."

The magazine article also explains that young Mr. Roosevelt and his associate did a bit of hustling to obtain the business of writing a policy to cover 60 million to 100 million dollars worth of liquor stocks for the National Distillers' Products corporation.

"We did a bit of hustling and we got the account—the only whiskey account we have—by writing a new form of whiskey insurance policy and having it accepted by the underwriters' association."

WHEAT DUMPING PROPOSED

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is said to be ready to announce a plan whereby 100 million bushels of American wheat is to be sold abroad under an export subsidy plan. The announcement may have been made before this reaches the reader.

This year's United States wheat crop amounts to 956 million bushels, and the carryover is about 180 million bushels. Wheat prices have been about at the 1932-33 level. The situation gives rise to "I told you so" statements by both proponents and opponents of crop limitation as under the AAA plan, which was outlawed by the supreme court.

Money for the proposed subsidy would come from federal tariff receipts, about 30 per cent of which, under a recent statute, are available for subsidizing exports of American farm crops. Tariff receipts for the fiscal year 1938 total 359 million dollars, which would permit the expenditure by the government of around 120 millions for export subsidies, provided the plan is put into effect.

The export subsidy plan, roughly, is that the federal government would take charge of exports of wheat or other crops into the world market. World market prices are not as high as our farmers would have them, so the subsidy would consist of payment of the difference by the government to the farmers.

HOW ONE MAN GOT AHEAD

Chester Pilch of Springfield, Mass., doesn't happen to be of old New England stock. In fact he is the son of a Polish immigrant, and when he sought for a job and couldn't find one he might have been expected, in these days of "gimme", to lie down and scream for federal aid. The story of how this son of an immigrant exercised good old American ingenuity and at last came to occupy an important place in a major industry is interesting.

Turned away from doors day after day while seeking

(Editor's Note—The Brass Ring and one free ride on The Washington Merry-Go-Round this week go to New York Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, presiding judge in the trial of Tammany leader James J. Hines.)

New York—Intimate friends of Ferdinand Pecora will tell you that, in his heart, he would rather be standing in young Tom Dewey's shoes prosecuting Jimmy Hines, than to be sitting bedecked in the black robe of a judge conducting the sensational Tammany trial.

"Ferd" is just built that way. To the tips of his fingers he is a crusader, a resourceful, indefatigable and indomitable battler for causes.

Long before anyone ever heard of Dewey, Pecora was rocking the nation and making history with his spectacular investigation of the greatest financial powers in the world—J. P. Morgan & Co., the Chase National Bank, the First National Bank, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and the New York Stock exchange. That was really big game hunting with mighty national issues at stake.

Out of Pecora's disclosures came three of the most far-reaching reforms of the New Deal—the Securities Act, the law creating the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Holding Company Act.

Following this, Pecora might have been the man standing in Dewey's shoes but for Tammany Hall.

In 1933, thrilled by the magnitude of his extraordinary achievements in Washington, Manhattan liberals ran him as an independent for District Attorney. But the Wigwam, while suffering defeat at the hands of Fiorello LaGuardia for the mayoralty, was still strong enough to elect its own man to the District Attorney's office in New York county.

It was this triumph which four years later was to open the way for Dewey and his big chance—the Hines trial.

And Pecora, by now elevated to the State Supreme Court, was especially singled out by Governor Lehman to preside over the Dewey prosecutions. What thoughts may run through Pecora's mind as he sits on his judicial dais are his alone. But it is not unlikely that he frequently wishes he were down in the fighting arena before him.

Life-long Fighter

Fighting comes natural to Pecora. He had to fight hard for everything he ever got in life.

Born 56 years ago in the small village of Nicosia, Sicily, he was brought to the U. S. by his parents when five years old. In his early teens his father died and Pecora took up the burden of supporting his mother, smaller brothers and sisters.

His great ambition was to become a lawyer, but it was not until he was 27 years old that he was able to realize it. The need of supporting his family while working his way through school made it difficult to battle his way to the goal.

An effective speaker and possessed of an unusually ingratiating personality, young Pecora was early attracted to politics. He joined the Democratic party, but the qualities of the crusader deeply ingrained in his soul kept him from tying up too closely with Tammany Hall. And Tammany, while appreciating his outstanding talents, was always chary.

In politics it would allow him to progress only so far. In 1938 he was named an assistant District Attorney, and four years later, after especially brilliant work, was elevated to chief assistant. But the District Attorneyship itself was carefully kept out of his reach. The Wigwam preferred "safer" men.

His fears of Pecora were not without grounds. Although holding a Democratic appointment in 1924, he supported the elder Senator ator Bob LaFollette in his independent presidential campaign.

Pecora remained chief assistant District Attorney until 1930, when he returned to private practice. Three years later he was summoned to Washington to tackle the much befuddled and ineffectual banking probe.

Three predecessors had blown up on the job. The investigation had got nowhere. Wall Street was laughing up its sleeve.

Three months after Pecora had taken hold, that laugh had turned to a howl of outraged fury—not only in the Street but in the Senate committee.

Led by Virginia's peppery little Senator Carter Glass, a group of committee members sought to block Pecora's expose of certain secret Morgan deals. The warring within the committee was bitter and close. Two great members of the committee, the late Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, Democratic chairman from Florida, and the late Senator James Couzens, Republican from Michigan, were Pecora's unflinching mainstays.

At one point the Glass bloc succeeded in stopping Pecora from interrogating the Morgan partners on their holdings in the firm. They agreed to receive the information in the secrecy of the committee, but that was all. When Pecora tried to ask questions based on the data, they moved to shelve it permanently.

A fierce row ensued. Couzens finally stopped Glass in his tracks by threatening to take the Senate floor and reveal the whole story and how each committee member voted. After that Pecora had no more trouble.

Working 15 and 18 hours a day in the most ferocious of Washington's hot weather, Pecora had the mightiest of the Wall Street giants terrorized. Their fear was strikingly illustrated by the following incident.

Several reporters asked J. P. Morgan about a statement he had made regarding his tax payments in England, at a time when he had paid no income tax in the U. S. The international banker reached into his pocket but was unable to find the document.

"Looks like it has been filched", he jested.

"Maybe you ought to have the matter investigated", laughingly suggested one of the newsmen.

"Oh, no, no," protested Morgan, instantly serious, "no more investigations. This one is more than enough. Why, do you know, two months before we even came down here, Mr. Pecora kept us busy from early morning until late in the night examining our records. He just doesn't seem to tire out."

SECRET AMBITION

Pecora's secret ambition is to be a U. S. Senator. He wanted to run in 1936 when the late Senator Royal S. Copeland was up for reelection, and could have won hands down if White House leaders had had the courage to back him.

But Roosevelt was up for a second term and his political master minds were afraid that a primary battle with Copeland might throw New York State into jeopardy. So they swallowed Copeland without a fight.

The election returns showed their fears were groundless. Copeland, instead of leading the President, trailed far behind. Had the Administration generalissimos the "courage of their convictions, they could have shelved Copeland and armed themselves with a first-class fighting Senator.

They have the same chance this year following Copeland's death. But it's doubtful if they will make use of it. Despite newspaper accounts of the highly efficient purge steam-roller, inner New Deal circles are featured chiefly by timidity and friction.

work, Pilch became discouraged in that aspect of trying to make a living. He decided to make his own job. Somewhere he had heard that in China and Japan there is a well-guarded secret by which anyone "in the know" can tell merely by looking at a day-old chick whether it is going to grow up to crow or to cackle. Pilch called upon a professor who had been to the orient and was supposed to know the secret, and after conferring with the professor, and after studying chicks for three years, he mastered the art. Now Pilch commands a salary of $12 an hour, and if he cares to work ten hours a day he gets $120 for a day's work.

The ability to foresee whether a chick eventually will lay eggs or merely grace the table as a capon is important to poultry men because now it is possible for men who specialize in egg production to write the hatcheries and specify a shipment of future hens. Poultrymen who cater to those who wish to eat fried chicken rather than fried eggs, may specify a shipment of future back-fence alarm clocks.

Under the old system it was not possible to tell hens from roosters until the chicks were fairly large. Anyone ordering a shipment before that time simply took what he received and was unable to specialize in broilers or laying hens.

Author of
"THE MARKS OF A CLEAR MIND"

"The keenest anguish known to human nature is the pain of a new idea," (Bagehot). We hope this column brings you pain.

Answer to Question No. 1—

1. No. Because school teachers can't tell bright pupils from dumb ones and neither can parents. Dr. Harry Elser, of Columbia, compared the estimates of the intelligence of 495 pupils made by their teachers with the measurements made with intelligence tests. When properly given and interpreted intelligence tests are pretty accurate measure of intelligence or capacity to become intelligent. The results of the two methods did not agree at all. The boy rated by the teachers as the dumbest, scored the highest in the whole school on intelligence tests. Other experiments have shown similar results.

Answer to Question No. 2—

2. If the heredity were completely known, I think Dad would be wrong. Dr. H. H. Laughlin, backed by Walter W. Salmon race horse breeder of Lexington, Kentucky, has carried on a six-year research of the race horse and worked out a "general formula of heredity" as a yardstick by which to measure the racing capacity not only of a horse but of its offspring. The predictions of actual racing capacity in many horses have been remarkably successful but the research, being purely scientific, is not available for betting purposes. I have no doubt whatsoever that this formula if it were available would net handsome profits where races are run fairly.

Answer to Question No. 3—

3. Yes, that's a good way to put it. It is impossible for the mind to learn new truth unless it is open to receive new truth. However, open-mindedness should not be carried so far that one never reaches any conclusions or convictions. The main thing is to be on the alert for new evidence. The worst fault we have is allowing our emotions and wishes to get in the way of our intellect and thus blind us to all evidence that might change our beliefs.

ANNUAL BUREAU COUNTY FAIR'S PROGRAM READ

83rd Annual Exhibit Will Open at Princeton on Tuesday

The 83rd annual Bureau County Fair, which promises beyond all question to be the greatest in the history of the Bureau County Fair Association, will open next Tuesday at the fair grounds located on the west edge of the city of Princeton.

The Fair will run four days and evenings, concluding on Friday night and when this year's exposition closes, it is expected that it will be acclaimed the greatest county fair to have been held in the state during the 1938 season.

With larger purses, better and more numerous exhibits, more concessions, more and faster horses entered in the four great days of racing, and the special night shows every evening, the mammoth live stock parade on Friday morning, the Bureau County Fair will stand in a class by itself in Illinois.

Band to Play

One of the high lights of the fair will be the all high school band, under the direction of J. Harold Lowry, Princeton high school band master. Picked musicians from all high schools in the county will be given the chance to play with the band. Rehearsals are now being held at the Princeton high school. Mr. Lowry is training a group of 40 or more pieces. Special music is being prepared for the event.

In commenting upon the 1938 fair Secretary Glee P. Seibel said, "In the many years that I have been connected with county fairs, I have seen nothing that will equal or surpass the prospects of the Bureau County Fair this year. The four days of horse racing has added a great deal to the fair program and will afford the racing fans much enjoyment during the exposition. We have many high class entries in the trotting and pacing races and in the colt stakes. The night shows all have very talented performers and have received top-notch billings in the larger cities."

Expect Big Attendance

When asked about the probable attendance at the 1938 Bureau County Fair, Secretary Seibel, although reluctant to give a definite figure, remarked, "All indications from interest shown by the public and the exhibitors, lead me to believe that from a standpoint of attendance the fair will rival the 1920's. By shifting the program each year we believe we know just what the public wants in entertainment. As evidence that we expect the largest crowd in history we have provided additional parking space for cars and more autos than ever before can be accommodated within the grounds."

Friday night, the final evening of the fair, will, in the estimation of the fair board, be the big night of the four-day event. A real live baby with clothes, go-cart and cradle will be given away free in front of the amphitheatre. Robert Kobacker, advance agent for the Tilley Shows, is handling this event and promises that it will be something different and will be long remembered by those attending the Friday night show.

A great deal of comment has been created in Princeton, as well as wherever the event has been staged, as to what kind of a baby it is. The fair board and Mr. Kobacker assure the public that this will be well worth attending and someone will go home on Friday night the proud winner of a beautiful live baby.

Store Employees Have Afternoon Party and Picnic at State Park

Truth of the old "all work and no play" axiom probably will never be felt by employees of the Dixon Grocery and Market, for at least once each year, they are entertained with a party planned by their employer, Albert E. Martin. On Thursday, members of the force were given the afternoon off, and were invited to the Pines for an afternoon of amusement, climaxed with a baked ham supper. Fishing, horseback riding, and a ball game were fun for the group. Making up the crowd were Mr. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin and son Roger, Mr. and Mrs. James Bishop and son George, Mr. and Mrs. George Mathias and daughter Frances, Mr. and Mrs. William Dautler, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Tranum, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher and son, Mrs. Peter Mondlock and daughter Margaret, Mrs. Frances Miller, Miss Edith Krahenbuhl, Joseph Krueger, Melvin Murphy and two nephews, Kenneth Hasselberg, Harry Slane, Alvin Black, Elwin Carlson and his brother, Mr. Ford, and several invited guests.

John Fosselmans are Honored with Garden Party at Sipe Home

Goodbyes were said to a well-liked couple on Thursday evening, when 30 friends of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Fosselman gathered at the rustic cabin in the J. W. Sipe garden on Ottawa avenue to wish them happiness in their new home in Miami, Fla. The couple, who will be missed by a wide circle of friends here, were heading south yesterday morning, after a ten-year residence in Dixon.

Employees of the Royal Blue store, which Mr. Fosselman had recently because of ill health, and the Marilyn shop made up the guest list, numbering 30. The nearby rock garden, and the blended hues of late summer flowers made a colorful setting for the affair.

A chromium clock and a compass for their car were presented to the honor guests in remembrance of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Perkins entertained with violin and guitar selections and at the close of the evening, Howard Byers responded to requests for the song, "When Day Is Done," with Mrs. Perkins accompanying him on the violin.

4-H CLUB HAS ACHIEVEMENT DAY

Progress in mastering home making tasks made during the season by members of the Marion Busy Bee 4-H club, was demonstrated on Thursday with an Achievement Day program presented at Walton hall before an interested audience of mothers and daughters. Individual work accomplished by the young homemakers was particularly pleasing to members of the Marion Home Bureau unit, sponsors of Marion township 4-H clubs.

Practical knowledge acquired by the girls during the brief study period is evidence of the ability of the club leader, Miss Rita Guggerty, as well as co-operation of the parents and enthusiasm of the club members themselves.

Reports were given of the 4-H club camp, at which girls of similar interests from a wide area met to discuss common problems. Following the program, light refreshments were served, and projects completed by the group were inspected.

COE GRADUATES HAVE PLANS FOR WINTER

Miss Alice Street and Miss Jewell Auman, who were graduated in June from Coe college in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, have interesting plans for the winter. Miss Street, daughter of Mrs. Lester Street, is expected to return to Dixon next week from Marine, Minn., where she has been acting as waterfront director at Camp Lakamaga, a Girl Scout camp, but will be off again by Sept. 1 for Rockwell City, Iowa, where she has accepted an appointment as director of physical education for junior high and high school students.

Miss Auman, a daughter of the Earl Auman of 518 East Second street, left Wednesday for Cambria, Iowa, where she is to act as music supervisor in the Cambria high school and grade school this year. Miss Auman, whose new work will begin with the opening of the Cambria schools on Monday, is to have charge of orchestra and chorus groups, and instruct an English class.

Mr. and Mrs. Auman accompanied their daughter to Cambria, returning to Dixon on Thursday.

Moss-Covered Stones Link Past Century With Present One for Local Methodists

Several dozen moss-covered stones, newly cemented together with mortar, link the past century with the present one for members of the Methodist Episcopal church of Dixon. For the stones, which once were part of the foundation for a pioneer dwelling in the section familiarly known to hundreds of present day pleasure seekers as Lowell park, now form a large outdoor fireplace on the lawn back of the church. The attractive structure was completed yesterday.

Along the north drive in Lowell park is a stone marker, pointing out the site of the home built there in 1836 by Mr. and Mrs. John Richards. And Mr. and Mrs. Richards were two of the seven persons who organized the first Methodist "class" here on May 7, 1837.

Though the Richards, who came here from Toronto, Ont., didn't remain long in their new home, due to difficulty in obtaining water in the vicinity, they left an indelible mark on the history of Methodism in Dixon, now in its second century of service. Mrs. E. E. Wingert of 302 East Boyd street, an active member of the church, is a granddaughter of the pioneer couple.

The stones, which were removed from the park by special permission of the park board, are believed to have come originally from the nearby quarry. W. D. Baum, chairman of the house committee, helped plan the fireplace, patterned largely after the one at the island home of the Keith Bensons near Sterling. L. O. Gorton, a friend of the church, was in charge of construction, and a number of others have contributed materials. Mr. Gorton, it will be remembered, also did much of the masonry at Lowell park.

The fireplace stands beneath a sheltering elm, surrounded by a wide sweep of lawn, and is equipped with detachable grates so that either wood or charcoal may be used. A little later, a bronze plate will be placed on the outdoor grill, stating that the stones came from the home of two pioneer organizers of Methodism in Dixon.

In speaking of the fireplace as he watched Mr. Gorton applying the finishing touches to the structure yesterday afternoon, the Rev. H. P. Buxton, who is just completing his third year as pastor of the church, made the following comment:

"We expect the fireplace to become the center of religious and recreational gatherings, not only for young people of the church, but other groups as well. The project is part of a larger program of landscaping of the lawns around the church and nearby parsonage. Next Wednesday and Thursday, men of the church will volunteer to assist in hauling soil under the direction of Wilbur Courtright, chairman of the church work committee, and within a few weeks dedicatory services will be held."

SKATING PARTIES AT LOCAL RINK

Presbyterians Honor Edward Eichenbergers with Farewell Party

The Edward Eichenbergers, who plan to leave about Sept. 1 for Berne, Ind., to reside, are making their farewells and enjoying gay gatherings of friends before their departure. Last evening, 50 members of the Presbyterian church met in Lowell park for a scramble supper as a farewell courtesy for the family, the group including members of the session, a former Sunday school class taught by the late D. B. Raymond, and others with whom the Eichenbergers have been associated in church and Sunday school work.

Short talks were made by several of the group, expressing wishes for happiness and success for the honor guests, and in behalf of the gathering, W. H. Coppins presented Mr. and Mrs. Eichenberger with a gift. Daniel, Charles and Alan Eichenberger were with their parents last evening, as was Mr. Eichenberger's mother, who is visiting here from Berne.

BOY SCOUT GROUP FOR LEE COUNTY BI-MONTHLY MEET

Reports of Activities Are Made at Dinner Held Here

The Lee county district Boy Scout committee held its regular bi-monthly meeting at the Hotel Nachusa Thursday evening. Dr. Holladay, district chairman presided.

Following a dinner at 6:30 reports of the various troops and packs in the district were made. These indicate that there has been greater activity during the past summer than a year ago. The summer program is becoming more and more popular. Scoutmasters are discovering that such activities as swim meets, campfires and council camps are an aid to them in keeping interest in their own troops.

The report of the camping committee, by its chairman, Elwin Bunnell showed that 31 per cent of the registered Scouts of the district attended council camp during the past summer. This is an increase over past years and indicates that the Blackhawk Area council camp is becoming increasingly popular. Mr. Bunnell suggested that next year greater facilities would have to be made in order to accommodate more Scouts in camp.

Membership reports showed a decrease in membership during the past two months. An analysis of the individual troop membership records revealed that this decrease is due to the fact that several Scouts failed to register in certain troops when their charters were renewed this summer and there has been very little recruiting done during July and August. It is a known fact, however, that the months of September, October and November are the best three months of the year for recruiting. With this fact in mind the committee is very hopeful of an increased membership which will reach the goal set for December 31, 1938. This goal is for 275 Scouts. If this goal is reached Lee county will have as many Scouts, in proportion to its population, as any district in the council and will compare favorably with the Scout density in the rest of the country. It will be considerably better than it is in many places.

Cub membership reports show that the goal set for the district last February has been passed. It is hoped that by December 31 of this year several new Packs will be organized and the number of Cubs registered in the district will even double the goal.

Leadership and training needs were discussed and it was definitely decided that a training course for Scouters and other men interested in Scouting, should be started during the coming month. The course that will be offered first is known as "Introduction to Scouting" and is part one of a national training program including a great number of courses. This first course consists of three sessions or a total of ten hours and deals with the elements of Scout leadership. Courses will be put on in Dixon, Amboy and some place in the eastern end of the district.

Finance Plans. Finance plans were discussed and it was decided that every community having a Scout Troop should be organized for a campaign with the next two months. Members of the committee emphasized the importance of council organization and the need for finances to keep the program active in each and every community. The district finance committee is to meet in the next week or ten days and decide on definite dates and procedure for campaigns. L. S. Griffith of Amboy is chairman of the finance committee.

Chairman Holladay appointed the following to a nominating committee: Elwin Bunnell, chairman; Jack Keay, of Amboy; C. J. McLean and Enos Keithley. This committee is to appoint men for election to the district committee for the coming year. The election will be held at the October meeting and new officers will take office in January.

SCHOOLGIRLS GOLF FINALS AT CHICAGO TODAY
Chicago, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The last obstacle between Patty Berg, the Minneapolis redhead, and her first women's western golf championship, is a sturdy, courageous 17-year-old girl from Dubuque, Iowa, bespectacled Edith Estabrooks.
They met today in the final 36-hole round for the title, playing 18 this morning and another 18 this afternoon at Olympia Fields.
Thus, a pair of schoolgirls survived a brilliant field of 124 that started playing for the championship last Monday.
Miss Berg, who has won eight of her eleven tournament starts this year, is strongly favored over her more youthful opponent, who proved to be the heroine of the tournament yesterday in fighting through 23 holes to defeat Mrs. Burt Well, Cincinnati, one up in their semi-final match.
Miss Estabrooks, daughter of a fee course operator at Dubuque, faces her first major opportunity, although in addition to holding the 1937 western junior title she has been a contender in several important tournaments.
The Minneapolis redhead climaxed five days of superb golf by defeating Shirley Ann Johnson, Chicago, 3 and 2, with superb golf.

Laurel Wreaths Decorate Many After Trapshoot
Vandalia, O., Aug. 27.—(AP)—America's trapshooting kings and queens were homeward bound today with cash and trophies won in the 39th annual Grand American carnival—but those most heavily laden didn't have far to go for they lived inside the Buckeye borders.
Ortello William (Ted) West, Coshocton county's highway superintendent, had the greatest amount of "loot," about $3,000, for his victory in the Grand American Handicap, but laurel wreaths decorated plenty of other Ohio heads.
Mrs. George Peters of Springfield, O., won the women's grand American handicap.
Buckeyes boomed out victories in all but the doubles, which went to veteran Fred Etchen, of Wichita, Kan.
Joe Heistand, Hillsboro farmer, started the Buckeye barrage by breaking 966 targets at 16 yards to set a world's record and annex the North American clay target title. Mark Hootman of Hicksville took the champion of champions race limited to state champions. Karl Maust of Columbus won the professional clay target tournament.
L. R. Slagle of South Charleston annexed the preliminary handicap, and West the Grand American and Heistand won the overall or all-around title. Never before had the grand been so dominated by shooters from a single state.
West broke 99 of 100 in the Friday handicap, and then beat Parr Rhines, Marseilles, Ill., hardware merchant in a shoot off, 23 to 22.

JOHN BULL MAY HAVE TO FIGHT SAYS SIR SIMON

Hitler Warned Against Hostilities Against Czechoslovakia

London, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Great Britain issued a plea today to "all quarters" to lessen the tension in Czechoslovakia.
A government statement welcomed the "conciliatory attitude" of the Czechoslovak government in offering a new basis for negotiations with nazi-supported, autonomy-seeking Sudeten Germans.
British officials expressly condemned the action of the Sudeten German party in relaxing the discipline of its members in a proclamation yesterday that freed them to use force in "self-defense."
Of the Praha government's concessions, the statement said:
"It is to be hoped this contribution may meet with a constructive response and that every effort will be made in all quarters concerned, directly or indirectly, to refrain from any action which may heighten the tension."
It added:
"Issue by the Sudeten Deutsch (German) party of a proclamation relaxing the admirable discipline hitherto displayed is much deplorable."
The government statement given out a few hours before the speech of Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, on the same subject, was received with some surprise and was generally accepted as an indication of the British government's increasing anxiety over the Czechoslovak situation.

WARNING ISSUED
Lanark, Scotland, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, served notice on an anxious world today that Great Britain might have to fight if Germany started a war in central Europe.
The former foreign minister repeated, "as holding good today," Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's declaration before the House of Commons March 24 that "if war was to break out it would be unlikely to be confined to those who have assumed such obligations" — to aid Czechoslovakia against aggression.
An hour before the chancellor was scheduled to speak he revised his speech to put his own punch behind Chamberlain's march warning that Britain might be forced to fight.
The beginning of a conflict is like the beginning of a fire in a high wind," he said.
"It may be limited at the start. But who can say how far it would spread or how much destruction it would do or how many may be called to beat it out?"
Added Warning
In another last-minute insertion, Sir John added this warning:
"This very case of Czechoslovakia may be so critical for the future of Europe that it would be impossible to assume a limit to the disturbance that a conflict might involve and every one in every country who considers the consequences has to bear that in mind."
Sir John coupled a firm warning that there "is no limit to the reactions of war" today with an unmistakable plea to Chancellor Adolf Hitler to do his "duty" and take outside pressure off the dispute in Czechoslovakia where the nazi-supported German Sudeten party demands autonomy.
The chancellor of the exchequer spoke at a Conservative party demonstration in this Scottish town after significant conferences during the week with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax.
His speech clearly reflected Britain's grave anxiety lest Hitler come to a point where he is ready to thrust armed might across the German frontier to help his Sudeten followers get land and power by force of guns.
Sir John asserted:
"To find a solution for the controversy in Czechoslovakia, contributions from all concerned are needed."
"As a government we have recognized in Czechoslovakia a real problem which urgently needs to be solved. We are convinced that given good will on all sides, it should be possible to find a solution which is just to all legitimate interests. And there is no need to emphasize the importance of finding a peaceful solution. For in the modern world there is no limit to the reactions of war."
Sir John continued:
"The British government therefore have used their influence with both sides in the Czechoslovak dispute to urge the adoption of reasonableness in efforts to reach a solution."
Viscount Runciman, unofficial British referee in the German-Czechoslovak dispute over minority rights, was sent to Praha neither as "arbitrator nor judge," Sir John said, but as "mediator and friend."

Plain Call to Germany
The Chancellor concluded his speech with this plain call to Germany:
"The good wishes of all the world, which realize how much hangs upon his success, are with him."

Lord Runciman in the task of mediation that, with such public spirit, he has undertaken.
"He is at Prague at this moment in no sense as a representative of the British government but as a representative of all men who desire justice and love peace."
"I am convinced that all reasonable persons in every nation must desire to assist rather than hamper him in his endeavors to bring the several elements of the Czechoslovak problem to a just settlement."
"Meanwhile it is the duty not only of us but of all others—and we are all concerned in world peace—to do nothing to imperil a satisfactory solution."
"And as I have said, we firmly believe that if the right spirit prevails a peaceful settlement which should reconcile legitimate interests and claims should, by dint of patience and goodwill, be attained."

present waste and extravagance."
He told the party to go beyond relief and "restore to the people a chance to return to honest work at solid American wages."
Martin gave the G. O. P. for a battle cry: "Let's Put America Back to Work."
Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant national chairman in charge of Women's activities, told party workers:
"To save the American system, the Republican party must become the majority party in 1940. The starting point is 1938."
Raymond E. Willis, Indiana Republican senatorial nominee, said that "as long as the American people remain a free people" no man ever would be elected president for a third term.
"And that goes," he added, "for Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

SIGNS A WRITTEN STATEMENT THAT PAL DID SLAYING

Woman Names Hiking Companion as One Who Fired Shots

Fairfield, Ill., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Adam Gloeckner said today Mrs. Jean Brooks, 23, slender Tennessee mountain woman, had signed a written statement accusing her buxom companion, Mrs. Beulah Honeycutt, 25, of firing the two shots that killed Felix Shannon.
Shannon, 56, was shot to death in his home near Mount Erie Sunday night after he had picked up two women hitch-hikers on the road. The two women were captured Tuesday at Hopkinsville, Ky.
Gloeckner said the principal details of the written statement were the same as Mrs. Brooks' oral confession, in which Sheriff Ernest Burkett quoted her as saying she was in another room when Mrs. Honeycutt shot Shannon.
Orders Friend to Fire.
The sheriff quoted Mrs. Brooks as saying Mrs. Honeycutt then ordered her to fire one shot also, "so you can't squeal on me."
Mrs. Honeycutt, a taciturn blonde, admitted orally that she was at Shannon's home, but accused Mrs. Brooks of firing the shots, Burkett said.
Mrs. Brooks said in her confession that she was married when she was 12 years old and was the mother of four children, Gloeckner reported.
"My husband sent me to high school for three years," Gloeckner quoted her as saying.

JAPANESE UNITE FORCES IN PUSH TO HANKOW
Shanghai, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Chinese and Japanese artillery pounded each other today in a terrific Yangtze valley battle pre-empting a redoubled Japanese drive toward Hankow before winter comes.
Japanese aircraft, warships and infantry joined in what foreign military observers called the biggest offensive so far in the undeclared war.
An intensive artillery duel raged west of Lu-Shan mountain, 10 miles south of Kuikiang and close to the 90-mile Kuikiang-Nanchang railway, defenses of which the Japanese hope to crush. Japanese aviators declared they bombed a Chinese truck train filled with soldiers between Nanchang, important Chinese air base, and Teian, 50 miles to the north. Three hundred were reported killed.
Southwest of Hangchow, on the southeastern coast, Chinese irregulars were said to have overwhelmed a Japanese garrison, inflicted hundreds of casualties, and captured 22 armored cars and tanks.
Chinese military headquarters announced the abandonment of Juichang, 21 miles west of Kuikiang and 100 air miles southeast of Hankow, the provisional capital.

Miss Elsie Neff Wins Women's Golf Marathon

Back in 1927, "Lucky Lindy" caused the skies above the stormy Atlantic to be dotted with planes striving to emulate his conquering of the briny deep between N'Yawk and the Continent. Ever since then, no matter what a person does to gain over-night fame, there are always thousands of others who can "do him one better." Even today, you would scarcely exclaim a good lousy "Ho-hum" if you were informed that some intrepid soul who originally had scheduled a flight to Frankfurt-On-the-Main wound up by landing on a bunch of frankfurts in the back of Krausmeyer's butcher shop in Chicago. Such is the mimicry of this day and age. Dixon is not immune.

In the first few days of August, a young broker in Chicago, J. Smith Ferebee, waged a plantation full of mint-juleps that he could play 144 holes of golf between sun-up and sundown. He did and made the front page of every paper in this hyar land. Immediately began an influx of marathons in every part of the country. Soon J. Smith's original record commanded no awe, but rather snickers of disdain when in comparison to the following rounds shot by others from 204 to 230. Just the other day, Ferebee received a brusque challenge from a Chicago Amazon in Maywood who thought she could outdo on Olympia Fields where the original record was established. Ferebee declined, saying he had everything to lose and nothing to gain. All of which gives us our cue, or rather gave the ladies of Dixon their clue. Sensing that it would be useless to have a marathon to the finish with J. Smith, it was decided to have a feminine marathon on the local links yesterday.

Race Against Time
That's why just as our foursome was winding up on the ninth hole in the seven-eighths dusk last eve, a wild-eyed, flushed figure rushed out of the opaqueness that was the ninth fairway and swooped onto the green, shouting rather breathlessly, "Which one is my ball? Where is it? Oh, there it is!" This dashing figure was soon followed by an entourage of caddies (who seemed rather wobbly on their pins). The dashing figure putted from far out on the green... nipped the pin with the pellet, shouted to the caddy back over her shoulder as she flew towards the first tee, "Get the ball and add one more stroke to my score. I've just GOT to play three more holes BEFORE dark!" (Even then it was so blackish, that as soon as I putted my ball in the general direction of the hole, I scamped to pick it up before Wadsworth substituted one of his "found" species for it in the dark.)

That flying figure was Miss Elsie Neff completing her 87th hole of the day. Miss Cathryn Buchner had already completed her 90th hole and had taken 561 strokes for the 90. Elsie had to complete as many holes as Cathryn to be eligible to win the first prize which was awarded for the most holes played at the lowest score. So off in the fast-gathering blackness she flew with a galaxy of gallery who obligingly spread out on the fairway fan-shaped so to keep track of her ball. This was accomplished in a battle against time, as all playing (by rule) had to cease at 7:15 P. M. sharp. With Timekeeper Harold Coss on the scene, Elsie sank her final putt and 512th stroke at fourteen minutes and fifteen seconds past seven... barely making the deadline with a scant margin of 45 seconds to spare! In doing this she clinched the marathon pennant over her closest rival, Cathryn Buchner who also played 90 holes but who lost out before the amazingly consistent golf shot by Miss Neff. The winner took 512 strokes as compared with 561 taken by Miss Buchner.

The rounds as played by Miss Neff were as follows: 51, 51, 51, 50, 45, 51, 53, 51, 58-512.
Sparkling Golf
And that really constitutes some sparkling golf, believe you and me. Consistency is Elsie's middle name. Look at those first four rounds of 51. Then down to 50 on the fifth round. She started the second half of her endurance run with a 45, which if you consider the fact that she had already walked at least nine miles and probably ten or more, is something to be very proud of. Her average was 50.4 for 81 holes, but the race against time in the darkness forced her to take a 58 on the final round, her highest of the day. This also boosted her final average up to 51.2 for each round. To those of you who may be a bit sceptic as to the arduousness of shooting 90 holes of golf on the local links, let me remind you that the local course measures 3,166 yards in a straight line. It is practically certain that one will travel 3,500 yards when following an ornery golf ball around the course, so by simple mathematics, those who played 90 holes traveled 19.8 miles yesterday. You can cheat a bit on that extra two-tenths of a mile, Elsie and Cathryn, for the space traveled between the green and the following tee is not included, so if you say you actually traveled 20 miles, I, for one, will not utter a peep!

Not "in the money" but undoubtedly just as tired today are six other local Amazons. In third place was Mrs. Coss who traveled nine complete rounds or 81 holes with a score of 480 or an average of 53.3. Fourth place went to Mrs. Buchner with 496 for 81 holes, or an average of 55.1. Back in 1915, Ralph DePalma gained undying fame in Indianapolis at the 500 mile race when his car suddenly broke down and he refused to percolate when DePalma was leading the race at 495.5 miles. Ralph was so far ahead that he got out and pushed his racer across the line before his nearest rival could pass him. But he failed to receive the first place award on account of a ruling that the car had to finish the 500 miles under its own power. A similarity may be noticed between DePalma's tough luck and that of Mrs. Chapman, who finished fifth in the marathon. She had the best average of the day per round, but was forced to "give up the ship" at the end of 72 holes. At that time she had 407 for an average of 50.87. Sixth place went to Mrs. Brewster who finished 72 holes easily, but whose average was 56.9 at that time. Mrs. Beier finished seventh in the marathon when she finished 54 holes with 311 for an average of 51.8. Miss Rorer played 54 holes with an average of 53.1.

Mrs. Beier Sets Pace
Mrs. Beier set the pace for 36 holes for low score for which she was awarded one of the major prizes of the day. Her score for 36 holes was 203, one stroke better than Miss Neff at that stage of the game. Mrs. Beier also won the putting crown for 36 holes when she nosed out Miss Neff again. The former took 64 strokes with her putter while Miss Neff had 66, and that, you gentlemen with the wobbly nerves, is not even two putts to a green! (You can't beat these ladies, it seems! Or can you... when do you gents have your marathon... or are you afraid that you cannot match yesterday's feminine achievements? How! Fraidie cats!)

Just thought of what the "meanest man in town" would have done today: Painstakingly call each of the above marathon contestants at a round and invite them out to a round of golf!
Flash! Ken Stuart earned the right to meet "Floy-Floy" Smith in the final round of the second flight championship, Sunday September 4th. Ken accomplished this by successfully warding off the valiant comeback of Gene Barrowman in the second nine holes of their 18 hole match last night. The first nine had been played Wednesday evening with Ken enjoying a 4-up lead on Gene at the end of the first nine. Gene came back today to whittle Ken down to a two-hole lead at the end of the 14th hole. Gene won the 15th making him one-down. Stuart came back strong on the 16th to be two-up again. The 17th was halved giving Stuart the match.

LIFE BEGINS AT 40
One of the most successful events of the year was staged Thursday out at the club when the program of "Life Begins at 40" was unfurled. All the "oldtimers" were back in the fold and the way that they enjoyed themselves was something to behold. Many faces, long absent, hove into view and received a warm and enthusiastic welcome. Congeniality was the order of the day and beaming smiles were a dime-a-dozen. Affairs of this kind are certain to weld the "oldtimers" (we're only foolin' about that cognomen) into a group that will be once again in popular evidence both on the fairways and in the clubhouse. The get-together proved that the club has plenty to offer everyone in the way of real recreation.

On the links, there were 32 of the boys battling for the glory of their captains, Ed Vaile and Sam Stanfield. There used to be a slogan, "As goes Maine, so goes?" And it was true on the links on Thursday, for: "As goes the captain, so goes his team." Ed downed Rowland, his opponent while Sam found E. B. Raymond too much and went down to defeat. Vaile's team won by the close margin of 22 to 19.

Badger and Wagner, both of Amboy, helped the winners along by beating Paul Charter and Rosecrans, respectively. The doctors Evans and Stackhouse won out over Dr. Smith and Eddie Jones, respectively. Dr. Edwards battled to a tie with F. X. Newcomer while Dr. Hamilton found Bing Hoefler a Tartar. Bracken came out on the short end of the score against Bill Foster, but made a creditable showing, notwithstanding. Ollie Rogers and Leland both had 41's but Leland walked off with the three points. Segner annihilated Isador Elchler, but it was great fun. Frank Rorer "took" Dr. Thompson, too.

After the fairway frolics, the clubhouse capers began and continued into the evening after the lads enjoyed a delectable repast at the tables of the charming Mrs. Foster.

AND... Morrison beat the Country Club "team" (of six) Thursday. A brief team and a brief notice, eh wot?

YANKEES SO FAR AHEAD THAT IT'S NO LONGER CLOSE

Gehrig and Company Are Mere Twelve Games in First Place

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer.
It is being suggested around and about that Messrs. Ford Frick and Will Harridge get those Yankees to take up tating between April and October next year, while the 15 other so-called big league clubs hold an elimination to decide the victims for Gehrig & Co. in the '39 World Series.

The idea may not seem completely silly, if you take a look at what are laughingly called the American and National League pennant races this year.

Consider, for example, the National League chase of recent weeks, which finds the first four clubs separated by only 6½ games, and all of them apparently doing their best to educate the folks in how not to win the flag. Then look at the American League, where the Yankees are a mere 12 games out in front and the rest of the loop looking about as full of fight as old Aunt Jane sitting by the fireside. Not one team has picked up so much as a game on the Yanks in two weeks.

Cubs Come to Life.
Turning once more to the National League, you have the Cubs momentarily coming to life to regain third place with a 7-3 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday for a winning streak of four-straight, but the logical question is "How long will it last?"

And cast a glance at the Pittsburgh Pirates. Given an odds on chance of winning the pennant in the last month, the Bucs not only have dropped three straight to the last place Phillies, but dropped them to old men pitchers. Thursday Wild Bill Hallahan beat them and yesterday old Lefty Al Smith took a 6-4 decision—and he, like Hallahan, hadn't won a game previously this season.

After you've enjoyed your laugh at that one, have another on those rude Reds from Cincinnati who became just as amiable in going down for the third straight time before Boston's no-punch Bucs, 6-1, on Johnny Lanning's seven-hitter.

Win In Ninth.
Bill Terry's second place Giants succeeded in kicking away a ball game to the Cardinals as the gas-housers came through, 7-6, on a run in the ninth.

All this left the Pirates still holding a 4½ game lead over the Giants, with the Cubs a game farther back and the Reds one more length to the bad.
The Yankees split with the Cleveland Indians in their fourth straight twin bill, winning the opener, 15-9, on the seven runs Joe DiMaggio batted in, and dropping the nightcap, 8-5, to Willis Hudlin's flinging. But Boston's second place Red Sox did nothing about closing the gap, for their best was an even break in a pair with the White Sox. Old Ted Lyons took the opener, 12-2, and Jimmy Foxx whacked two homers in Boston's 9-8 nightcap win.

Te Detroit Tigers came a game nearer the first division with a 9-3 margin over Washington, and the Athletics retained their slim percentage hold on seventh place by splitting with the Browns, taking the opener 11-6 and giving St. Louis the afterpiece 6-4.

Famed Race Horses Have Special Guard

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Two of America's most talked about race horses had special guards about their stables today as Saratoga's famed 30-day meeting drew to a close amid an official investigation into "doping" activities.

On edge as a result of state racing commission disclosures, the trainers of War Admiral and El Chico took special precautions against interlopers as the two top-notch runners faced supreme tests on the Spa track.

Matt Brady, trainer of William Ziegler's, Jr.'s El Chico, undefeated two-year-old and odds-on favorite to win the $50,000 hopeful stakes today, doubled the guard around his stable during the night. War Admiral, winner of three

WEEK END EVENTS

Tonight—Horse show at county fair.

Tomorrow morning—Tennis tournament.

Tomorrow afternoon—Double header at Reynolds field.

WARM-UP GAME
Oregon's softball team in a game which they dubbed "a warm-up for the Ashton tournament next week", defeated the Kellers team from Dixon by a score of 6 to 1 last night on the Ogile county diamond.

TOURNAMENT OPENING
To lift the curtain on the Ashton Invitational Softball tournament which begins Monday night the Oregon team, coached by "Hap" Blanchard, will play the Reynolds Wire team of Dixon in the first game, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

TOMORROW AT THIS TIME
By tomorrow at this time the winner of the finals in the city's singles tennis tournament will be one bronze trophy heavier. Play begins at 9:30 in the morning (ho-hum)—but it's the early bird that gets the worm—or the cold, as the case may be. In spite of the up-before-breakfast hour, many are expected to turn out and cheer for Covert and Joslyn, one of whom will be the city's champion. The winner must take the best three out of five sets.

TO ALL-STARS GAME
The curtain goes up on the football season next Wednesday night when the college All-Stars play the Washington Red Skins, professional football champions of last season at Soldiers field in Chicago. There are several from Dixon just itching to see the game and among those who will attend are: Gerald Ankeny, Harold Cook, Alfred Nichols, John Moore, Gene McNamara, Don Miller, Bruce Palmer, Howard Edwards, John Jensen, Bob Miller, Phil Watts, Bob Underwood, Elsworth Burkett, Dr. H. J. McCoy, Bob Hofmann, Ken Barnhart, Fred Bovey.

WAY TO MAN'S HEART
There is an old familiar proverb about how to win a man which is employed by many love-seeking women. The gem was learned at mother's knee long ago, but yesterday it seems the axiom was tossed into the discard as four young matrons kept their husbands waiting for dinner last night while they golfed the little golf balls about the golf course. It was the day (and evening) of the Dixon country club's marathon for lady members. Four better-halves were seen at the club house rocking nervously and nursing an empty inside while they waited for their evening meals. They took a lot of healthy razzing, but they proved to be as good sports as their golfing wives.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

It was a big day at the Rock River Valley Country club at Oregon Thursday when about 100 golfers from this area met for "Pine-Dae". Gene Nelson and D. Hunt tied for low score with 76. Low net was tied up between Neil Allen of Oregon and John Conlin of DeKalb. Their score was 70. William Jenkins of Oregon was number two man. The day's birdie winners were William Jenkins, Jerry Fearer of Oregon, C. E. Nelson of Rockford, John Franklin of Oregon, Ed Wirlich of Rochelle, Ken Detweiler of Dixon, and R. L. Clark of Rockford. Mr. Johnson, 77, of Wauwatosa was awarded a prize for the oldest golfer. George McClarin was given a prize for trying hardest. Al Huske of DeKalb with 36 and 33 for 69 won top honors for the pros' class. Wis Garner, Rochelle, was second high pro.

Included in the large number of raw materials purchased for the manufacture of motor cars are: soda, hogs, wheat, straw, and sand. The soda and sand are for glass; the hogs for upholstery, and the wheat for boards and panels.

WORLD'S SPEED RECORD BROKEN BY ENGLISHMAN

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Captain George E. T. Eyston smashed the world's automobile speed record to shreds today, boosting his own mark to 345.49 miles per hour.

Roaring through the measured mile in two directions within one hour, the retired British army captain far exceeded his own world land speed record of 311.42, chalked up here last November. Eyston's mighty "Thunderbolt," painted black to overcome a glaring sun which robbed him of a new record Wednesday, hit 347.49 miles per hour on the outward trip and 343.51 miles per hour on the return jaunt.

The lean Briton, his face and overalls grimy, laughed and shook hands with everyone within reach. "Thunderbolt," was by no means at full throttle on either run, he said.

"I had a very comfortable ride and not once did I feel there was any danger. I purposely ran under the times I made last Wednesday. I wanted to be certain I set a new record, but I also wanted to be sure that the car and I got through in good shape."

Eyston estimated after his Wednesday run that he was running "devilish close to 360" on the return trip when the electric eye timer failed to open after he has registered 47.16 miles per hour, on the initial test. Painting the "Thunderbolt" black apparently overcame the difficulty with the "eye."

On the Side

Bits of Gossip of Sports Picked Up By AP Writer

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Mike Jacobs will not get a very warm welcome from Detroit and Chicago fight promoters, but the boys out there may as well make up their minds to get used to him. Next big league managerial change will occur in the American League within two weeks (or less) after the season closes.

Three guesses... There ain't any truth to the reports Mrs. Helen Willis Moody will change her mind. Red Webster of the Dallas Dispatch-Journal has been a caustic critic of the Dallas Steers all season... The other day he took over the first basing duties against Benmont... He went hitless in two trips to the plate, but fielded seven chances perfectly... Steve Basil, who is doing a good job of umpiring in the American League, is a Syrian and an uncle of Pecky Sarron, the former featherweight champion. The old jinx is after Al Schacht. He was raised out in Worcester, Mass., the other night for the first time in the two seasons he has been tickling the minors. But Al has a rain check and will be back in Worcester, Sept. 18.

They have something down in Virginia. When three guys failed to make a winter out of the Swansboro semi-pro club near Richmond, they drafted Mrs. H. B. Bush (she's no bushier) to manage the team... She gave the boys a rain check and turned if they didn't go out and win three in a row for her.

Harry Kimberlin, pitching for San Antonio, won a ball game and killed a rabbit the same night... The bunny came tearing from beneath the bleachers and headed for the home plate via second base. A fast ball, thrown at 20 feet, did the work... Tommy Farr is blaming manager Joe Gould for his runout in the Maurice Strickland match... Gould insisted Farr be guaranteed a Joe Louis shot if he won.

Mark this down: Wichita University is liable to give Army one good pushing around in that football opener... Old Charlie Clark, who took over the last place Winston-Salem team in the Piedmont league and won seven out of the first eight is happier than he has been in years and friends write he looks 10 years younger since getting back into baseball.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)
Don Gutteridge, Cardinals—Hit two triples and twins, driving in four runs, including the winning tally, in 7-6 defeat of Giants.
Joe DiMaggio, Yankees—DeMaggio drove in seven runs with homer, two doubles and single in opener win; Pytlak sent five across in nightcap with homer, triple and single.
Clay Bryant, Cubs—Held Dodgers to ten hits and hit homer himself for 7-3 victory.

Gerry Walker, White Sox, and Pinky Higgins, Red Sox—Walker hit triple, two doubles, and drove in six runs in 12-2 opener win; Higgins' tenth inning single sent deciding run across for 9-8 nightcap edge.
Johnny Lanning, Bees—Stopped Reds with seven hits for 6-1 victory.
Al Benton, Tigers—Whipped Senators 9-3 with nine hits.
Al Smith, Phillies—Held Pirates to seven hits for eight innings for 6-4 victory.

Bob Johnson, Athletics, and Don Heffner, Browns—Johnson hit homer, two singles, drove in one run and scored three in opener victory; Heffner's two doubles sent two runs across in 6-4 nightcap win.

Second Place Team And Toppers Tangle in Three-I Today

Chicago, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Decatur's second-place Commies tangled with the Three-Eye's League-leading Evansville Bees today, but so far as the standings were concerned, the battle meant no more than a chance for the Commies to retain their runner-up position against the onrush of Springfield. Evansville was in as the 1938 champion, holding a 12½ game lead with only nine days to go to the end of the season. Decatur, however, held but a scant one-game margin over Springfield, which gained a half-game yesterday by breaking even with the league-leaders, while Decatur fell before Bloomington in 11 innings, 3 to 2. The Browns turned back Evansville, 6 to 2, in their opener, but lost the second, 10 to 1. Moline strengthened its hold on fourth place by trouncing Waterloo, 13 to 2. Cedar Rapids defeated Clinton, 7 to 2.

EVERYTHING SET FOR BIG DOUBLE FEATURE SUNDAY

Three Local Teams Will Be Out at Reynolds Field Tomorrow

It's a double-feature day at Reynolds field tomorrow when three local teams will give a pre-season windup of the nation's favorite sport.

The first game is scheduled for 1:30 when the Dixon Legion Athletics take the diamond with the Sterling Legion boys. Among those from Dixon in this game will be the Devine twins, Boucher, Kelly, Kelly, Emmert, Clayton, Sloan, Brown, B. Williams, Shank, Cottle and others. This game will demonstrate to the fans what the Legion has accomplished in taking this ball club under its wing and shaping it into a team of outstanding young players. The Dixon post has sponsored a Legion league for the past two years and from it are likely to come some of the stars of tomorrow. Last year there was an eight team league and this year a six team league.

IN GALENA MUSEUM.
Galena, Ill. —(AP)—Thomas Nast's painting, "Peace in Union," hung today in the new Galena museum. The canvas, 9 feet high and 15 feet long, which portrays Lee's surrender to Grant at Appamattox, was presented to Galena by H. H. Kohlsta of Chicago. It has hung in the Galena postoffice since 1895. It was moved yesterday to the museum which opens today.
Figures compiled show that during 1936, 3,150,000 school children in the United States were transported to their schools in special buses.
Trains must stop upon signal and give water to anyone in distress, according to a decree of Arizona law.
